

Privacy Notice for Donors

You are sending your personal and sensitive information (data) to Advocate for the purposes of making a donation to support access to justice. We have measures in place to protect your data and to ensure it is kept safe.

Advocate is the “Data Controller” and we determine how your information will be used.

Advocate has appointed a Data Protection Officer: Rebecca Wilkie, Advocate Chief Executive. You can email her at dataprotection@weareadvocate.org.uk. You can also write to her at Rebecca Wilkie, Data Protection Officer, Advocate DX, 50-52 Chancery Lane, London WC2A 1HL, London, WC2A 1JF.

People who may see your data, the systems we use, and the purpose of our processing

- Details of your donation including your contact details may be processed or seen by Advocate staff members, office & casework volunteers and Advocate trustees. This is for the purpose of phone calls, emails or letter sending (via Outlook, Salesforce, Royal Mail or DX) to thank you for your support.
- We will put your contact details and donation information onto our online contact management system, Salesforce, and our accounting system, Quickbooks, so that we can process your donation and thank you promptly. If we receive a standing order form from you this will be scanned and stored in Outlook and Advocate’s computer folders.
- Other people who may see your data include technical individuals and organisations who manage Advocate’s systems. Anyone who helps Advocate in this way will always have been asked to sign a confidentiality agreement to confirm they will treat anything they see as confidential, and will not share information further.
- We will never sell your data.
- We do not make decisions based using automated decision-making tools and will not process your data in this manner.

Our legal basis for processing your data

We will use legitimate interest as a legal basis for processing your donation accurately, for thanking you for your support, and for sending you email newsletters giving you updates on our work, activities, events and appeals.

You can decide not to receive newsletters from us by using the opt-out link included in each communication or by writing to us at consent@weareadvocate.org.uk.

How long we keep your data

Your electronic data

- We will securely store your electronic donation and contact record on Advocate’s systems at Advocate’s office in perpetuity. This is because it is important to be able to reflect back to our donors their lifetime contribution to access to justice. In a situation where donors pass away and their family wish to celebrate their charitable activities, we will confirm to donors’ families that they had been a supporter of Advocate, and give a rounded figure of their lifetime financial contribution to Advocate.

- Request that we stop holding or processing your personal data;
- Withdraw consent for our processing of your personal data;
- Correct or update the personal data we hold about you;
